Corn Pudding

Not all puddings are desserts. That old-time favorite, corn pudding, is a hot, hearty, baked combination of canned corn, eggs, and milk. It's good company with meat, poultry or fish.

You can make it with whole-kernel or cream-style corn, as you please. Here's the U. S. Department of Agriculture recipe designed for four servings. Ingredients: 1 1-3 cups drained whole-kernel corn; 2 eggs, beaten; 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine; 1 1-3 cups milk; season with salt and pepper. To make: mix corn, eggs, butter or margarine, and milk, season with salt and pepper. Pour into greased baking dish and set in a pan of hot water. Bake at 350 degrees F. (moderate oven) until set —50 or 60 minutes.

If you use cream-style corn, use 1 1-2 cups corn and reduce milk to 1-3 cup.

There's a record supply of canned corn to use this year. It's a buy, because many markets are offering specials on it. It's easy to use, popular with most people, and an item that satisfies and sticks to the ribs of the young fry in the family.

Want to brighten that corn pudding up a bit? Shake some bright red paprika over the top. It gives a nice contrast with either golden or white sweet corn.

Honey in Bakery Products

Honey may be found in, as well as on, more baked goods in the future, as a result of research by Kansas State College, Manhattan, Kans., under contract with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This work, aimed at expanding the use of honey in commercial bakery products, shows that substituting honey for all or part of the sugar in some baked goods improves their color, flavor and texture.

A method developed in this research makes the use of honey alone to sweeten cakes a commercial possibility for the first time.

Cakes with a high concentration of honey stay moist and freshlasting longer than do cakes made without honey. But if more than a third of the sugar is replaced, preparing cakes by a simple substitution of honey for sugar sometimes causes difficulty. A reaction of honey acids with baking powder as the batter is mixed may lead to low cake volume. Also, an intense browning reaction may occur during baking and give the cake a burned color and flavor. Extra soda cannot be added to increase cake volume, because it hastens undesired browning.

Tne researchers found they could control this browning reaction by raising the acidity of the cake batter in the final stages of baking. To do this they used potassium bitartrate coated with a stearate, which melts and releases the acid near the end of the baking time. Excellent cakes in which all the sugar was replaced by honey were produced by this method. Other methods to control browning are being studied.

Honey noticeably added to the flavor and color of some cookies. Because honey gives the cookies a chewy quality, only enough to replace 5 per cent of the sugar was used in crisp cookies. Even this small amount gave extra flavor to sugar cookies and vanilla wafers. In chewy cookiese, such as fruit bars and brownies, honey was used to replace over half the sugar. It improved texture and added to the flavor and color of these products.

The bread-making process did not need to be altered when honey was substituted for sugar in bread and rolls in the tests. Honey substituted for 6 per cent of the sugar in white breads and up to 12 per cent in dark breads imparted a rich flavor and aroma to both.

Honeys from various flower sources differ in moisture content, color, flavor, acidity, and sugar composition. The Kansas research workers used 15 types of honey and found that only the differences in flavor and cooki affected the baked goods. Although stronger, darker colored honeys, including those from buckwheat and heartsease blossoms, were not acceptable for most baked products, they could be used in mixtures with light honeys.

This contract research by Kansas State College on honey utilization is supervised by the Eastern Utilization Research Branch of U. S. D. A.'s Agricultural Research Service, Philadelphia 18, Pa.

LIVING COST RISE

About 200,000 packing - house workers are getting a two-cents-an-hour wage increase because of recent rises in the cost of living. The increases are required by escalator clauses written into union contracts in September.

FARM MIGRANTS

The Office of Migratory Workers of the Mexican Interior Department predicts that a record total of 460,000 farm laborers will go to the United States for temporary jobs during 1957. In 1956, 342,616 found work north of the Rio Grande.

SOVIET TRADE

Data on Soviet trade with the free world during 1956 appear to confirm the picture of Soviet economic strain recently announced by the Soviet Communist party Central Committee. The Soviet Union is estimated to have bought about $155,000,000 more worth of goods from the free world than it will have sold it. In 1955, the Government sold the free world more than it bought.

FARM LOANS

A record total of $336,480,000 in loans were made and insured by the Farmers Home Administration last year, according to Agriculture Department, which said the loans were used primarily for operation, improvement and purchase of family-type farms. The previous peak was about $281,000,000 in 1955. Loans outstanding as of the end of 1956 totaled about $885,000,000, an increase of $63,000,000 over the previous year.

NEW-TYPE CAMPAIGN

The recent election was preceded by a new-type campaign. The two major political parties did more campaigning by air in 1956 than ever before. The Republican and Democratic candidates for president and vice-president, as well as the "truth squads" registered 220,000 air miles. The previous high was the 178,275 in 1952, according to "Planes," official publication of the Aircraft Industries Association.

FACTORY RECORDS

During November, manufacturers shipped $28,900,000,000 of goods, and received $29,200,000,000 in new orders, according to the Commerce Department. Both were new highs. Both sales and new orders were up 2 per cent from October.

AUTO PRODUCTION

Total United States motor vehicle production in 1956 was 5,801,295 cars and 1,107,626 trucks. This compared with 7,941,171 cars and 1,248,890 trucks in 1955.

WHOLESALE SALES

November sales by wholesalers during November dropped 6 per cent from the October level. But the 11-month 1956 total still remained 8 per cent ahead of the 1955 volume. The greater decline was in durable goods lines — 7 per cent. However durables were up 4 per cent over November, 1955.

PRISON ROLLS

The population of the Federal Prisons remained about stable in 1956, according to James V. Bennett, director of Federal Prisons. But there was a rise in the number of serious offenders sent to prison, while admissions of minor offenders showed a major decrease. As of December 31, 1956, the prison population was around 20,000, an increase of less than 1 per cent over 1955. The number of bank and postal robbers, as of that date, totaled 877, about 75 per cent more than five years ago.

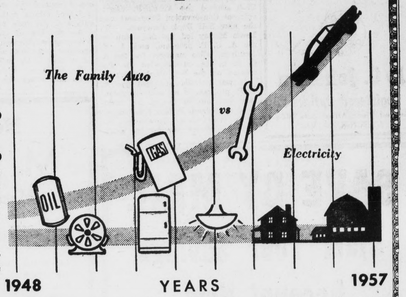
Let Us Compare Cost!



THE FAMILY AUTO: The unit cost of operating the family car has been going up ever since 1948. The top line in the graph (above) shows that oil, gasoline, repairs, etc. all cost more now than they did in 1948. This has made the unit cost to operate The Family Auto higher every year.

RURAL ELECTRICITY: But with Electricity, this is definitely not true. The unit cost of electricity has not increased since 1948. This means the cost to operate electric fans, refrigerators, lights and other rural home and farm equipment (see bottom line in graph above) has the same unit cost now it did in 1948.

CHECK YOUR RECORDS — COMPARE COSTS SEE FOR YOURSELF

And you, too, will join the many successful farmers who every year have increased use of electricity in the rural home and on the farm because the unit cost of electricity is the same now it was in 1948. That's why our member-consumers can "Live Better—Electrically".
